Dear Mr. Fick,

Thanks for your interesting letter of the 28th.

Cohen is to me Jake the Fake. His is the least scholarly approach, one based upon what he knows to be untruthful.

Not only did he use the line about luck on the Jack McKinney show, he has used it elsewhere. When he pulled it on me on a TV show in New York I tore him up over it. But little things like reality do not disturb those so blind they cannot see or so blinded by prejudice or other things they will not. Ultimately, all these falsehoods help bring out the truth for they make people who think like you think more. Many write their legislators and the magazine, and I think the effect is beginning to show.

Again, thanks, hurriedly and

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
